Once upon a time, a
princess was born,
with reddish blonde hair,
porcelain skin,
and blue eyes in a tiny form.
She was born to a strong mother
and a nonexistent father,
who drank and told lies.
Her mother had no
place to call home,
and was forced to raise
her baby girl
all alone.

The mother's hardship soon went away
when she met a prince at her work one day.
He fell in love with her instantly,
asked her to dance,
and to the forested hill he took her away.
He followed his heart,
which told him to act without further delay.

The princess grew up with gentle animals,
with whom she played.
In their company she spent
In the fields & forest on many long and sunny days.
She observed their feelings, their hurts,
and their seemingly magical ways.

As the princess grew,
she heard a voice inside her that sounded familiar,
which told her what she needed to do.
This voice was called intuition.
It resided in her and it resides in you.
This voice is the voice of our Inner self,
which governs our mind, spirit, body, and health.
It will encourage, love, protect, and guide you.
And, in uncertain times, will even offer help.
Intuition is not to be confused with the ego,
Which from fear it feeds.
This voice is your ally and your friend
because it is you, loves you, and knows exactly what you need.

Her intuition warned her of dangers headed her way.
It spoke to her through dreams and images,
and told her what to focus on each day.
It guided her to subjects to read, and areas to explore,
to understand her path, and what her future had in store.
